We Don't Teach, We Educate

We Saw It – And It Still Works!

Our return to Chauprali Primary School in April 2025 felt like a homecoming. A decade after installing our first Wall-Hung Library (WHL) in 2015, we were welcomed back by the same dedicated Headmistress, Ms. Kavita Sharma, and teachers who still cherish that early initiative.

Though the original WHL jackets are gone, the culture of reading thrives—now expanded into cosy classroom corners and grade-level book collections.

The same story unfolded in Rohilapur and Hajipur. School Headmistress & Teachers confirmed the usefulness of WHL. "Students develop reading habits, they paint pictures, are more engaged, thanks to WHL's pictorial storybooks." These testimonials vindicate our commitment in providing WHL to village schools across India.

Help us spread this ripple effect—support our next WHL today! It costs just Rs 10,000 to provide a WHL with over 100 story books in the language of the region!

Library students made useable bags from old cloths on World Earth Day

On World Earth Day, the BFA Library cum Creativity Centres turned into a hub of sustainability craft and creativity. Children were encouraged to explore the concept of waste recycling—not through lectures, but action. Using old clothes, they made useful items, learning not just how to reuse, but how to rethink.

This initiative proved that real education isn't limited to subjects—it's about values. It's about teaching the next generation to care for their planet with the resources they already have. And as they stitched, folded, and created, something else was being sewn: the seeds of a more sustainable future.

What More Evidence Do We Need?

Vishakha didn't let life's difficulties define her. Married, with a child, an ailing mother-in-law, and a husband working irregular daily-wage jobs, she had every reason to give up. But she didn't. She chose to pursue her dream of becoming a beautician.

Supported by Books For All, she joined the course—and impressed everyone on her makeup exam day with her professionalism and poise. Even before completing the course, Vishakha got placed at Glam Looks Salon, earning ₹15,000/month.

One look at her transformation, and we know: this is impact you can see, feel, and believe in.

On May 10th, Adobe hosted a magical storytelling event for their employees and families across Noida and Bengaluru to celebrate the Family Day and Books For All (BFA) was privileged to help facilitate this event.

In Noida, Adobe employees and their families gathered for a weekend of fun & bonding over story telling, building Family Tree & game of Bingo Our talented storyteller, Ms. Jaishree, supported by BFA's Ms. Indrani and Mr. Rajendra Gupta, brought stories to life with warmth and energy. In a First of its kind the same program was organised simultaneously in Adobe Bengaluru effectively managed by Our senior member Ms. Deepa Sengar along with Ms. Nilima.

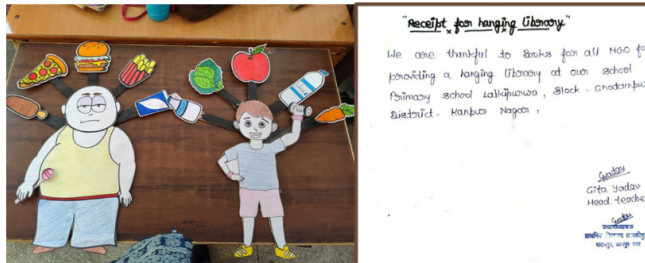

These moments are a testament to why corporations like Adobe invest in their employees and families – they're investing in stronger families and communities. We're grateful to have been a part of creating these lasting memories!
