BFA Library Students Shine at Adobe Mini Olympiad

On 27th February, our library students won the First Prize at Adobe's Mini Olympiad. Under Project Smile, the event saw participation from around 15 NGOs. Nearly 500–600 students took part in more than 10 indoor and outdoor games.

For this year's event, Adobe had invited famous actor Sonu Sood as chief guest. He interacted with students and encouraged students to build a strong foundation so they can one day be part of leading companies like Adobe.

Books For All Partners with Upkram to Bring WHL to Rural Rajasthan

WHL and its impact was published in regional newspapers.

Wall Hung Libraries (WHL) news always brings excitement to our readers, and this time the story comes from one of the remotest parts of Udaipur district, Rajasthan. In partnership with the local NGO Upkram, we identified rural schools where (WHL) could be installed. Through this collaboration, WHLs were set up in 16 schools, reaching more than 2,400 students.

Teachers shared encouraging feedback, noting that the libraries directly support students' academic learning. We invite organizations across India to recommend schools in need, and we will be happy to send a WHL as a gift to support their students.

Turning Waste into Creativity in Our Library

Books For All (BFA) volunteers conducted a workshop at the Rohillapur Library, teaching over 30 students to creatively use old newspapers and scrap materials. During the workshop, more than 30 students learned to make fridge magnets from recycled materials.

These magnets later became a highlight at an NGO Expo organized by Adobe, where over 450 executives visited the Books For All counter, participated in activities, and winners received the student-made fridge magnets.
