

From Barriers to Board Success: Stories of Courage

We are proud of the students supported under Project Sarthak, a Books For All initiative for children needing educational support. Prachi, Priya, Uma, and Shivani passed their Class 10 UP Board exams with distinction, while Geeta Mandal cleared Class 12 with First Division. Their success reflects hard work and determination. Since Class 6, these students have received support from BFA for school fees, books, stationery, and uniforms. Uma, raised by a single mother, once faced the risk of dropping out, while Geeta continued her studies despite challenges faced by her migrant family. We thank our sponsors and well-wishers, especially residents of Eldeco Utopia, for helping these children continue their education.

WHL Receive Print Media Recognition

The Wall Hanging Library (WHL) initiative of Books For All recently received coverage in regional print media following the inauguration of a library at Mahatma Gandhi Government School, Hartinapur, Kalandi, Rajasthan. More than 100 Hindi and English books, poems, and storybooks were made available to students through this low-cost library model. Teachers and community members shared that the initiative is encouraging reading habits, curiosity, and language learning among children while creating a joyful learning environment in the school. The recognition motivates us to continue expanding the Wall Hanging Library movement to more schools and communities.

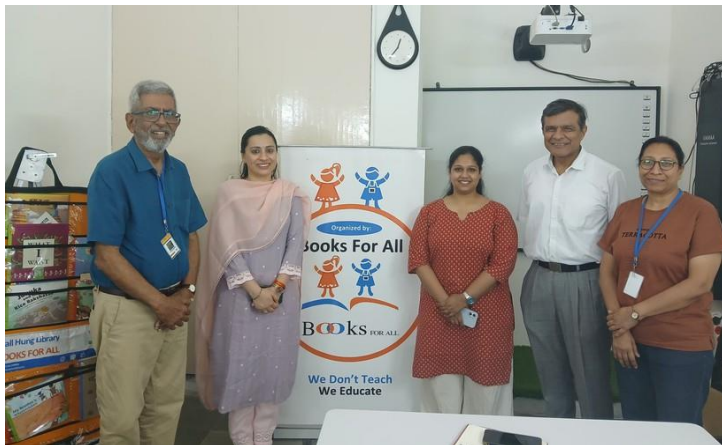

Mr. Manish Sanghi, BFA Trustee

In a time when students depend heavily on AI tools and instant Google searches, Books For All continues to encourage the habit of using dictionaries to strengthen language learning and independent thinking among children. Recently, students explored difficult words from stories such as The Talkative Tortoise, The Flowering Tree, Crow's Relatives, and The Mice and the Elephants through dictionary activities in classrooms and library spaces. These sessions helped improve vocabulary, spelling, pronunciation, and reading comprehension while encouraging curiosity and self-learning. While digital tools provide quick meanings, dictionary learning helps children understand words in context, improve reading habits, and build confidence in using language independently.
